

Cashmere Valley Bank Selects IT-Lifeline to Provide Comprehensive Continuity & Recovery Solution

Cashmere Valley Bank's (CVB) entire operating environment, including their core system will be vaulted for recovery at the IT-Lifeline (ITL) Recovery Center

SPOKANE, Wash., 2008 – IT-Lifeline, the largest provider of Disaster Recovery and Business Continuity (DR/BC) services for small to medium sized businesses in the Pacific Northwest and will be providing multiple of DR/BC services for the customer centric bank.

IT-Lifeline will back-up CVB's critical data and applications offsite at the recovery center located in Liberty Lake, Washington. ITL will also provide a logical partition on an iSeries server for host recovery, as well as, provisioning a workplace recover suite.

“Being able to work with a single provider whose core competency is DR/BC, allows us to focus on our core competency – being a bank focused on providing the best quality service to our customers. Having a practical location to resume bank operations coupled with a partner that understands the importance we place on high quality continual service to our customers no matter the circumstances, provides real peace of mind,” said Sue Ozburn, CIO of Cashmere Valley Bank.

“It requires separate and unique processes to launch and facilitate the technologies being provided to CVB.” Jim Sandford, Chief Operations Officer of IT-Lifeline explained, “We consistently hear from our customers the importance of working with a vendor they can depend on to provide a comprehensive solution. The selection of ITL is a testament to our talented engineering staff and depth of experience within the industry – we are thrilled to be working with CVB and their team.”

Cashmere Valley Bank's administrative offices are located in Cashmere and they have continued to grow since they opened in 1932 and serve the community today at 10 other branches throughout Washington.
